

Institute of Psychological Sciences Scholarship (IPS Scholarship)

Students who have applied for a PhD in the Institute and are in receipt of an offer or provisional offer but do not have funding will be automatically entered into consideration for the IPS Scholarship. Not separate application is required, but students are expected to discuss their application with their potential supervisors (for example, there may be ways in which their application might be strengthened – such as inclusion on a publication or conference presentation).

For the IPS studentships the following selection criteria are used:

Student criteria

- good academic qualifications & has applied /is applying for other sources of funding

Project criteria

- well written /original & extend or complement existing programmes; access to novel groups

Supervisory team criteria

- balanced team (early career + experienced supervisors)

Deadline: 29th June, 2012
